

Veryl Coghill Author Reading

Afterpain and Kickstand

Monday, October 21, 7:00

John M. Cuelenaere Public Library, 125 12 Street East

Afterpain - Coghill's poems resonate the haunting ache of loss. The poet poignantly shares the intimacy of forgiveness through a rekindled devotion from sickness to death. The poems are raw, virtuous and heart-wrenching. A must read. (Laurie Muirhead author of Bone Sense.)

Kickstand - Veryl Coghill's flash fiction stories light the dark corners of our imaginings. Her writing can make you catch your breath- she writes of small moments that are sometimes everyday, sometimes apocalyptic and she asks that we bear witness. (Lynda Monahan, author of A Slow Dance in the Flames, What My Body Knows, Verge, A Beautiful Stone (cowritten) and The Door at the End of Everything).

Veryl Coghill has been published in numerous literary journals including: Grain, Event, The Prairie Journal and Nashwaak Review. She has a poetry collection Make me published with Thistledown Press. Coghill was born in Moose Jaw, SK. She spent thirty years in Prince Albert, SK. with the north Saskatchewan river guiding and inspiring her. She now lives, plays, dances and creates in Saskatoon, SK. The South Saskatchewan river is at her window which provides new insight and direction.
